² WAM is a measure of the average maturity of all of the underlying money market instruments in the fund, weighted to reflect the relative percentage ownership of each instrument, and taking into account applicable "maturity shortening" provisions. Generally, for money market funds, WAM can be used primarily as a measure of relative sensitivity to interest rate changes.

³ WAL is the WAM of the money market fund calculated without reference to the "maturity shortening" provisions. Because WAL does not reflect the rule's "maturity shortening" provisions, WAL will generally be higher than WAM.
